By submitting your stamps to us for sale, you grant us the right to fully examine all stamps which includes the removal of stamps from mounts, holders, envelopes, folders and albums or any other container or storage that may prohibit us from fully examining the stamps. We may also remove or separate damaged stamps from undamaged stamps in order to sort and process your stamps in an efficient manner. The sorting and organization of the stamps for processing means that they will not be returned to their original storage or placement if returned to you, should you decline our offer to purchase the stamps. We typically process items received in one business day, though sometimes processing may take longer depending on the amount of items and their complexity to process. After processing received items, we may accept the items received and make an offer to purchase the items. In any case that a sale is completed and payment is due to a seller, we will make payment in the manner elected by the seller. Once payment is issued, we will not return any item for which payment has been sent.
